Legislative reference:	Section 842-105 and Section 768-100 Income Tax Assessment Act 1997

The earnings of certain foreign residents and visitors to Australia are exempt from income tax.

This exemption broadly applies to Australian sourced income earned by foreign residents in their official capacity as:

- a visiting foreign government representative or member of their entourage;
- a representative of an educational, scientific, religious or philanthropic society or association;
- a member of the foreign media reporting on proceedings relating to a visitor referred to in one of the preceding points;
- an advisor to an Australian Government Agency or as a member of a Royal Commission; or
- in assisting the Australian Government in regards to Australia's defence where the income is non-exempt in their country of residence.

The official salary and foreign sourced income earned by visitors to Australia are also exempt from income tax where reciprocal tax exemptions are provided by their home country and the visitor is:

- a foreign Government representative or staff of the representative when the Vienna Conventions on Consular or Diplomatic Relations do not apply; or
- an officer of a British Commonwealth of Nations Country in Australia to either provide their services on behalf of their country or an Australian Government Agency in accordance with intergovernmental arrangements.

Legislative reference:	International Tax Agreements Act 1953

Tax treaties reduce or eliminate double taxation caused by the exercise of source and residence country taxing rights on cross border income flows. Under some of Australia's tax treaties, certain dividends, interest and royalties attract reduced withholding tax rates. These include interest withholding tax exemptions for financial institutions and Governments and reduced dividend withholding tax rates where dividends are paid to companies with controlling interests in the companies paying the dividends, provided that certain integrity measures are satisfied.

The reductions are bilateral, thereby ensuring that withholding taxes will not result in unrelieved double taxation either for those foreign enterprises investing in Australia from treaty partner countries, or for Australian enterprises investing abroad in treaty partner countries. Prior to 2008-09 the benchmark that applied resulted in there being no tax expenditure.

Legislative reference:		Section 51-5 Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 Regulation 51-5.01 Income Tax Assessment Regulations 1997

Certain allowances and bounties payable to Australian Defence Force personnel are exempt from income tax. These include the following allowances – separation, living out, living away from home, child education, scholarship, retention of lodging, disturbance, transfer and deployment allowances – and re-engagement bounties.

In the case of living away from home allowances and living allowances paid to Australian Defence Force personnel, the benchmark treatment is compensation for the actual additional cost faced by employees in living away from their homes. Accordingly, this tax expenditure relates solely to that part of the allowance that is in excess of this compensation.

The market value of rations and quarters supplied without charge to Australian Defence Force personnel is exempt from income tax.

Education Tax Refund payments are exempt from income tax.

Eligible taxpayers can claim a refundable tax offset for 50 per cent of eligible education expenses incurred in respect of a student undertaking primary or secondary school studies, up to a maximum amount. For expenses incurred in 2008-09, the maximum amount of the Education Tax Refund is $375 for each primary school student and $750 for each secondary school student. In later years, these maximum amounts will increase in line with increases in the Consumer Price Index.

The Education Tax Refund applies to eligible expenses incurred from 1 July 2008.

Legislative reference:	Sections 8B to 8D Medicare Levy Act 1986 A New Tax System (Medicare Levy Surcharge — Fringe Benefits) Act 1999

Individuals and couples who do not have private health insurance and whose income exceeds a threshold are subject to an increased Medicare levy. From 1 July 2008, the total taxable income for surcharge purposes above which the Medicare levy surcharge of 1 per cent is payable has been increased for single individuals from $50,000 to $70,000. The combined taxable income for surcharge purposes for couples and families has increased from $100,000 to $140,000. The thresholds will now also be indexed to changes in average weekly ordinary time earnings. The surcharge has applied since 1 July 1997 and is a negative tax expenditure.

Child Care Tax Rebate (CCTR) is exempt from income tax.

From 1 July 2007 families may receive CCTR to cover a proportion of out-of-pocket expenses on approved child care, up to a maximum amount per child. For expenses incurred in 2006-07 and 2007-08, this proportion was 30 per cent and the maximum amount per child was $4,211 in 2006-07 and $4,354 in 2007-08. For expenses incurred in 2008-09 and later years, this proportion is 50 per cent. The maximum amount per child is $7,500 per child in 2008-09 and will increase in line with increases in the Consumer Price Index in later years.

For child care expenses incurred in 2004-05 and 2005-06, taxpayers may have been eligible for a tax offset in the next income year. See also the related tax expenditure A35 Tax offset for child care.

Commencement date:	1995					Expiry date:
Legislative reference:	Section 26AAC and Division 13A Income Tax Assessment Act 1936

Discounts on shares (or rights to acquire shares) acquired under an employee share acquisition scheme are generally included in the taxpayer's assessable income in the year in which the share or right was acquired. A taxpayer may defer the inclusion of discounts on qualifying shares or rights for up to 10 years. Alternatively, the taxpayer may elect to bring the discount on qualifying shares or rights to assessment in the year of acquisition and benefit from an exemption on the first $1,000. These concessions apply under certain conditions, in particular the share or right must be acquired after 28 March 1995. The concessions also apply to stapled securities that include an ordinary share and are listed on the Australian Stock Exchange with effect from 1 July 2006. Certain other shares or rights acquired before 28 March 1995 were eligible for an exemption on the first $200 of the discount.

The value of a pension or annuity may partly consist of contributions towards the income stream from the recipient's after-tax income. This part of the income stream is not taxed again when it is returned in the form of pension or annuity payments. A tax expenditure arises because the tax free part of a pension or annuity is apportioned evenly over the term of the income stream, providing a tax deferral advantage.

First Home Saver Accounts provide a vehicle for individuals to save for the purchase of their first home. The income earned by First Home Saver Accounts is taxed to the account provider at a rate of 15 per cent.

Tax Expenditures Statement

The tax expenditure reflects the extra tax in a particular year that may be collected if First Home Saver Account earnings were included in the assessable income of the account holder and taxed at their marginal rate, rather than at 15 per cent.

Where an individual withdraws money from their account, but does not use it to purchase a first home, they will be subject to a misuse tax which will effectively tax their earnings at the top marginal tax rate, plus Medicare levy. This reduces the amount of the tax expenditure.

The tax sparing provisions in Australia's tax treaties apply to tax incentives (for example, tax holidays) offered by developing countries to foreign investors. The effect of these tax sparing provisions is that income earned by Australian taxpayers who invest in certain developing countries is effectively subject to a tax exemption. Under tax sparing, the tax forgone by the country providing the tax concession to Australian resident investors is deemed to have been paid for the purposes of Australia's foreign tax credit system. This enables Australian residents to claim a tax credit in relation to their investments despite receiving a tax concession by the foreign country. Tax sparing arrangements in most tax treaties have now expired.

Commencement date:	2000				Expiry date:
Legislative reference:	Sections 26AH and 160AAB of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936

Some life insurance investment policyholders receive a concessional rate of tax because the policyholders' undistributed income is taxed at the company rate.

When a life insurance policy matures, is forfeited, or is surrendered the income distributed is known as a reversionary bonus. Reversionary bonuses that are distributed to policyholders more than 10 years after the commencement of the policy are exempt from further tax. If the bonuses are distributed in the ninth or tenth year after commencement of the policy, then only a fraction (two thirds or one third, respectively) of the bonuses are taxable. If the bonuses are distributed within eight years of the commencement of the policy, they are fully taxable. To the extent that reversionary bonuses are taxable, then policyholders are allowed a rebate at the company rate of tax.

This tax expenditure ensures that reversionary bonuses, on which a life insurance company has paid tax, are not subject to a form of double taxation when paid to policyholders during the taxable period of a policy.

The proceeds paid to shareholders who participate in an off-market share buy-back are split into a dividend component and a capital component. The dividend component of the buy-back proceeds may be fully franked. This allows companies that undertake off-market share buy-backs to distribute franking credits to participating shareholders beyond the level that would normally be available. Treating part of the proceeds as a dividend makes off-market share buy-backs more attractive to low marginal tax rate taxpayers. This facilitates streaming of franking credits to those shareholders that can obtain the most benefit. The tax expenditure is equal to the difference in tax payable, had those franking credits been distributed uniformly to all shareholders.

The tax expenditure from off-market share buy-backs may be partly offset by the anti-streaming provisions in the income tax law that operate to ensure that part of the buy-back proceeds are treated as capital (and therefore give rise to a capital gain or a capital loss rather than a franked dividend).

Projections beyond 2007-08 are not reported because of the likely volatility of this item.

A prepayment in relation to investments in infrastructure bonds, shares, units, rental property and arrangements entered into before 1 July 2000, to which product rulings apply, continues to be immediately deductible. This is conditional upon the prepayment expenditure meeting the requirements described in the tax expenditure Prepayment rule for Simplified Tax System taxpayers and non-business expenditure by individuals. The benchmark treatment of prepayments is that they are deductible over the period of the expenditure. The tax expenditure allows deductions to be spread over a shorter period and consequently it allows greater deductions than the benchmark treatment.

From 1 July 2007, small businesses with aggregate annual turnover of less than $2 million have been able to access this concession under the Small Business Framework.

Legislative reference:	Section 82KZMG of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936

Until 30 June 2008, prepayments on seasonally dependent agronomic operations in the establishment of a forestry plantation were immediately deductible. This was conditional upon the prepayment expenditure meeting certain requirements, including that the activities in question are completed within 12 months of the prepayment being made or the activities commencing and by the end of the following financial year. This tax expenditure was available for investors in forestry managed investment schemes. The benchmark treatment of prepayments was that they are deductible over the period of the expenditure. The tax expenditure allowed deductions to be spread over a shorter period and consequently allowed greater deductions in the year of investment than the benchmark treatment.

The prepayment rule has been replaced by a statutory deduction for investments in forestry managed investment schemes.

Prepayments by Simplified Tax System taxpayers and non-business prepayments by individual taxpayers are immediately deductible. This is conditional upon the service being provided over a period not exceeding 12 months and ending at the end of the income year following the income year in which the prepayment expenditure is incurred. This provision replaced the remaining applications of the '13 month rule' (described in tax expenditure B36 Transitional arrangements for prepayments).

From 1 July 2007, small businesses with an aggregate annual turnover of less than $2 million have been able to access this concession under the Small Business Framework.

A prepayment for services to be provided over a period of 10 years or more (for example, life membership) is evenly deducted over the first 10 years of that period. The benchmark treatment of prepayments is that they are deductible over the period of the expenditure. The tax expenditure allows deductions to be spread over a shorter period and consequently it allows greater deductions in the first 10 years than the benchmark treatment.

Legislative reference:	Sections 82 KZL(1), 82KZMB and 82KZMC of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936

Before 21 September 1999, an immediate prepayment deduction was available for expenditure for services provided within 13 months after the prepayment expenditure was incurred. This immediate deduction was subsequently removed over a five-year transitional period. The benchmark treatment of prepayments is that they are deductible over the period of the expenditure. The negative tax expenditure in the transitional period reflects the phasing in of the removal of the immediate prepayment deduction.

Legislative reference:	Sections 385-90 to 385-125 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997

Primary producers are eligible for a tax concession on the forced disposal or death of livestock resulting from certain events. These events include:

- the compulsory acquisition of land;
- destruction of pasture by drought, flood or fire;
- compulsory destruction of livestock for disease control; or
- notification of contamination of property or a cattle tick eradication campaign.

Primary producers who receive income from such disposals or deaths can elect to defer this income and use it to reduce the cost of replacement livestock in the disposal year or in any of the next five income years. Alternatively, primary producers can elect to spread profits between the income year of the disposal or death and the next four income years (or 10 years if the forced disposal was in relation to the control of bovine tuberculosis).

Commencement date:	1999				Expiry date:
Legislative reference:	Schedule 2G and Division 393 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936

The Farm Management Deposit (FMD) scheme allows primary producers (with a limited amount of non-primary production income) to defer their income tax liability. Primary producers are able to claim deductions for their FMD made in the year of deposit, with subsequent withdrawals being subject to assessment in the year of withdrawal. The FMD has a maximum limit on deposits of $400,000. Primary producers in exceptional circumstance areas are able to withdraw their deposits within 12 months while maintaining the concessional tax treatment of the scheme. The FMD scheme replaced the Income Equalisation Deposits and Farm Management Bonds schemes on 2 January 1999.

Projections beyond 2008-09 are not reported as the tax expenditure is very sensitive to variations in the amounts deposited and withdrawn in any year, which are dependent on a number of external factors.

Legislative reference:	Division 392 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997

Primary producers can elect to pay tax at a tax rate based on their average income earned over the previous five income years. If the taxpayer has not been using this facility for five years, the tax rate is based on the income years in which averaging has applied, and the previous year. This provides a concession because, on balance, the saving from paying less tax in high income years outweighs additional tax paid in low income years.

Projections beyond 2008-09 are not reported as the tax expenditure is very sensitive to variations in primary production income, which depends on a number of external factors.

Insurance recoveries may be received in relation to timber lost because of fire, or livestock lost due to disasters (for example, drought, fire, flood or disease). Primary producers who receive such insurance recoveries can elect to spread the income equally over five income years, resulting in a tax deferral. This concession only applies where the livestock are assets of a primary production business carried on in Australia.

If the value of a car used for income-producing purposes exceeds a certain amount 'car limit', the amount of depreciation deductions that can be claimed is capped at the 'car limit'. This represents a negative tax expenditure as the full value of the car should be depreciated under the benchmark.

The 'car limit' for 2007-08 is $57,123. This amount is indexed annually to movements in the motor vehicle purchase sub-group of the Consumer Price Index. The 'car limit' is not changed if the index has fallen for a particular year.

For income years commencing on or after 1 July 2007, taxpayers can claim deductions for expenses incurred in boating activities that are not carried on as a business. However, these deductions can only offset income from the boating activities, and if the deductions are greater than the income for that income year, the excess is carried forward, for offset against future income from boating activities.

For income years commencing prior to 1 July 2007, deductions are allowable only where the taxpayer can demonstrate that they were carrying on an active business using a boat.

Venture capital fund managers may be paid a performance-based share of partnership profits by investors. Such performance payments are 'carried interests'. Under the benchmark, these entitlements are taxable income of the fund managers as they accrue. Instead, under the law, an entitlement to receive a carried interest is a capital gains tax event in the hands of venture capital fund managers and is not treated as income. Consequently, taxation of the income is deferred until the gains are realised and individual managers are eligible for the 50 per cent discount on their carried interest.

Taxpayers are able to claim a deduction for some or all of the cost of the capital protection associated with capital protected borrowings.

The interest cost of capital protected borrowings includes the cost of borrowing and the cost of capital protection. Under the benchmark, the cost of borrowing is deductible, however the cost of capital protection where it is considered capital in nature is not deductible but instead included in the cost base of the asset.

The concessional treatment will not apply to capital protected borrowings arrangements entered into after 13 May 2008. Arrangements entered into before that date will continue to receive the concessional treatment for a period of up to five years.

Note: estimates include tax expenditures B55 and B58.

Concessional taxation treatment is available to investment companies that are established and registered as Pooled Development Funds (PDFs). Income arising from investments in small to medium enterprises is taxed at 15 per cent and other income is taxed at 25 per cent. These concessional tax rates are designed to encourage PDFs to invest in small to medium enterprises. In addition, investors who invest in PDFs are not liable for tax either on dividends paid by the PDF or on capital gains made on the sale of their shares in the PDF.

The PDF program was closed to applications for registration on 21 June 2007 as a result of the new tax concessions for early stage venture capital limited partnerships. The PDF program continues to operate for registered PDFs.

Resident and foreign partners are exempt from tax on revenue and capital gains derived in respect of their eligible investments in early stage venture capital limited partnerships.

An early stage venture capital limited partnership is a flow-through investment vehicle that is progressively replacing the Pooled Development Fund program.

To qualify as an early stage venture capital limited partnership, the size of the fund cannot exceed $100 million and the total assets of investee companies cannot exceed $50 million immediately prior to investment. The early stage venture capital limited partnership must divest itself of any holdings once the total assets of the investee company exceed $250 million.

Companies with an annual turnover of less than $5 million that undertake up to $1 million of research and development (R&D) are eligible to receive a refundable tax offset equivalent to the value of the R&D tax concession (which allows a tax deduction on eligible expenditure at the rate of either 125 per cent or 175 per cent).

The refundable R&D tax offset is an expense item and accordingly does not appear as a tax expenditure in its own right. Payments made under the refundable R&D offset are exempt from tax.

In addition, companies that claim the refundable R&D tax offset are unable to claim deductions for the R&D expenditures concerned. This is because the refundable R&D tax offset has already provided these companies with a benefit equivalent to the value of these deductions. The absence of these deductions constitutes a negative tax expenditure and explains why the estimates become negative from 2005-06.

Expenditure on core technology, except where incurred by companies in partnerships, is deductible at a rate of 100 per cent over the period of related research and development activities. This deduction is only available if the deduction is not greater than one third of the firm's expenditure on related research and development. The benchmark treatment for such expenditure is that it is deductible over its effective life and consequently the scope for the 100 per cent rate potentially allows a greater rate of deduction than the benchmark.

The family trust rules provide a concession to the 'test individual' of a family trust, and their family group, by allowing the transfer of losses and debt deductions to members of the family trust.

The trust loss rules — the benchmark — restrict trust losses and debt deductions from being transferred to persons who did not bear the economic burden. This is achieved by imposing tests on trusts to determine if any losses and debt deductions can be claimed. The tests examine whether there has been a change in underlying ownership or control of a trust and whether certain schemes have been entered into in order to take advantage of losses or debt deductions. Family trusts have to satisfy only the income injection test. The income injection test relates to schemes where persons outside the defined family group inject income into the trust to take advantage of trust losses and debt deductions. Distributions of trust income or capital made outside the family group will generally be subject to a family trust distribution tax.

Elements of the family trust rules are also used in the franking credit trading rules to facilitate the passing through of franking credits to beneficiaries of discretionary trusts and in the company loss recoupment rules as part of the alternative conditions for the continuity of ownership test.

Legislative reference:	Former subdivision 388 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997

Primary producers and users of rural land with taxable incomes of up to $20,000 a year were able to claim a 30 per cent tax offset for capital expenditure on soil conservation, prevention of land degradation and related measures incurred until the end of the 2000-01 income year. This concession was claimed as an alternative to the landcare deduction. The tax offset was based on one third of the eligible expenditure and was available in the year the expenditure was incurred and in each of the subsequent two years.

However, the offset will continue to apply after the 2000-01 income year to expenditure incurred in that or an earlier income year where the offset is apportioned over three years, or where taxpayers had insufficient tax payable to claim the entire offset in earlier income years.

In-house software is essentially software that is used in-house, rather than as trading stock, and that is a capital asset, rather than fully deductible in the year of purchase. It includes software, or a right to use software, that the taxpayer has acquired, developed or has had another entity develop.

Expenditure on in-house software is depreciated over a statutory effective life, rather than an effective life that is self-assessed by the taxpayer or that is determined by the Commissioner of Taxation. Prior to 13 May 2008, the statutory effective life was 2.5 years, which gave rise to a tax expenditure in relation to software which has an effective life greater than 2.5 years. For expenditure in relation to software assets newly held after 13 May 2008 the statutory effective life is 4 years.

A taxpayer can claim a deduction for capital works expenditure incurred in constructing capital works, including buildings and structural improvements and environment protection earthworks.

The deduction is either 2.5 per cent (over 40 years) or 4 per cent (over 25 years) of the construction expenditure, depending on when construction started and how the capital works are used.

A capital works deduction is generally available if the capital works are used for income producing purposes.

'Balancing adjustments' arise when the disposal value of a depreciating asset varies from its depreciated value. The tax liability for such balancing adjustments can be deferred where the balancing adjustment arises from certain changes in ownership, such as disposal as a result of a marriage breakdown. The transferee is taken to acquire the asset at the written down value and must depreciate the asset in the same way as the transferor.

Prior to 21 September 1999, balancing adjustment offsets were also available when replacement items of plant and equipment were acquired. This treatment is available to businesses with turnover of less than $1 million for assets acquired before 1 July 2001.

Assets costing less than $1,000 can be written off at the declining balance rate of 37.5 per cent through a low value asset pool. Once a taxpayer elects to create a low value pool, all assets that cost less than $1,000 are subject to the declining balance rate treatment. A low value asset pool is available to taxpayers who choose not to, or are ineligible to, enter the Simplified Tax System.

A low value pool mechanism for the depreciation of assets was introduced to reduce taxpayers' compliance costs by removing the need to track individual items for depreciation purposes.

Expenditure incurred by small and medium size businesses on acquiring plant or software (including upgrades) for the purpose of implementing the GST was immediately deductible. This deduction was available for the year ending 30 June 2000, provided that the equipment was ordered by 30 June 2000 and installed by 30 June 2001.

The estimates for this tax expenditure reflect that it brings forward the timing of tax deductions relative to deductions available under the effective life benchmark. This tax expenditure has a transitional impact until all eligible GST-related plant and software would have otherwise been fully depreciated.

Companies that increase expenditure on labour related components of research and development (R&D) which are Australian-owned are eligible to receive a 175 per cent tax concession for increases above the average of the previous three years' R&D expenditure. The 175 per cent premium covers all additional R&D expenditure excluding plant, pilot plant, contracted plant, plant leases, core technology, R&D related interest and items excluded from the 125 per cent R&D tax concession.

The concession is available to the extent that total R&D expenditure has increased. Total R&D expenditure includes both the Australian-owned and foreign-owned components of the premium tax concession. This deduction has been available to companies from the first income year starting after 30 June 2001.

Companies that undertake research and development (R&D) on behalf of a grouped foreign company are eligible for a 175 per cent tax concession for increases in R&D expenditure above the average of the previous three years' of R&D expenditure. Expenditure on behalf of a grouped foreign company which contributes to the calculation of the 175 per cent tax concession must be labour related and will be subject to a specific deduction at the rate of 100 per cent.

The concession is only available to the extent that total R&D expenditure has increased. Total R&D expenditure includes both the Australian-owned and foreign-owned components of the premium tax concession. This deduction has been available to the Australian subsidiaries of multinational enterprises from 1 July 2007.

Small businesses with annual turnover of less than $2 million may choose to use a simplified capital allowances regime for depreciating assets. Small businesses may write off immediately purchases costing less than $1,000 and depreciate assets that cost $1,000 or more at accelerated rates under a pooled arrangement. Depreciating assets with an effective life of less than 25 years are depreciated in a general pool at a rate of 30 per cent. Depreciating assets with an effective life of 25 years or more are depreciated in a long life pool at a rate of 5 per cent.

Prior to July 2007, this concession was available only to taxpayers that were part of the former Simplified Tax System. As part of aligning small business thresholds, the turnover eligibility threshold was raised from $1 million to $2 million.

The Simplified Tax System (STS) allowed eligible small businesses to access a range of tax concessions including simplified depreciation and trading stock rules. As part of the Government's initiative to align small business thresholds, the STS was replaced by the Small Business Framework which allows small business entities (with a turnover under $2 million) to choose the concessions that best meet their specific needs, subject to meeting any specific criteria for each concession. The concessions within the former STS can now be selected individually.

Policyholders of a friendly society that demutualises to a for-profit entity will not be subject to capital gains tax on any capital gains or losses they realise on the exchange of rights in the friendly society for shares in the demutualised entity. In addition, policyholders will receive a cost base for these shares that is based on the market value of the friendly society's health insurance business and the embedded value of any other business of the friendly society. Policyholders who receive a cash payment (rather than shares) under the demutualisation will receive a cost base calculated in an equivalent way.

Investors in forestry managed investment schemes (MIS) are able to claim immediate upfront deductions for their expenditure on such schemes, provided that, amongst other requirements, at least 70 per cent of the expenditure is directly related to developing forestry.

The statutory deduction means that investors in forestry MIS are unaffected by the ruling by the Commissioner of Taxation in Taxation Ruling TR2007/8 that, with effect from 1 July 2008, investments in agricultural managed investment schemes (including forestry) are capital in nature and therefore not deductible.

Interests in forestry MISs can be traded, subject to a four-year holding period rule and a market value pricing rule for initial investors. The proceeds on the sale or harvest of a forestry MIS interest by an initial investor are taxable income of the investor.

A related party at call loan is typically a loan made to a company by a related entity, has no fixed term and is repayable on demand. Under the benchmark debt-equity rules, such a loan would generally give rise to an equity interest rather than a debt interest. This means that interest payable on the loan would be frankable (but not deductible by the company).

A maximum tax rate of 30 per cent plus the Medicare levy applies to lump sum payments in lieu of unused long service or annual leave which accrued before 18 August 1993, or which are made in circumstances of bona fide redundancy, invalidity or under an early retirement scheme. All other lump sum payments in respect of unused annual or long service leave which accrued after 18 August 1993 are taxed at individual marginal rates.

Non-superannuation termination payments are generally paid by employers to terminating employees. Before 1 July 2007, these amounts were taxed in the same way as superannuation lump sums from untaxed funds with the exception of bona fide redundancy payments and approved early retirement scheme payments which were tax free up to certain limits. This tax expenditure excludes the treatment of payments in lieu of leave.

From 1 July 2007, non-superannuation termination payments are taxed differently to lump sums paid from untaxed funds. Pre-June 1983 and invalidity amounts are tax free, and the residual is taxed at 15 per cent for amounts up to $140,000 (indexed) for recipients aged above preservation age and at 30 per cent for those aged under preservation age. Amounts in excess of $140,000 are taxed at the top marginal tax rate. The Medicare levy is payable in addition to these rates. Transitional arrangements also apply for entitlements in place as at 9 May 2006. The tax treatment of genuine redundancy payments and early retirement scheme payments has not changed.

This tax expenditure excludes the treatment of payments in lieu of leave (see the tax expenditures Capped taxation rates for lump sum payments for unused recreation and long service leave (C2) and Taxation of 5 per cent of unused long service leave accumulated by 15 August 1978 (C15)).

Capital gains made by complying superannuation funds are taxed concessionally. Two-thirds of any nominal capital gain made from a capital gains tax event occurring on or after 21 September 1999 is included in the assessable income of a fund, provided the fund has held the asset for at least one year. The effect of this item is in addition to the effect of lower tax rates for superannuation investments reported in the tax expenditure Superannuation – concessional taxation of superannuation entity earnings (C6). The amounts reported reflect the additional tax that would be raised at fund rates on the same investments if total nominal capital gains were taxed instead of discounted gains or gains with frozen indexation.

Currently, employer contributions, after certain costs of the superannuation entity are deducted, are generally taxed in the assessable income of a superannuation entity at a concessional rate of 15 per cent. Generally, concessional deductible contributions subject to the 15 per cent tax rate are limited to $50,000 per annum for all individuals. However, transitional arrangements increase this limit to $100,000 per annum for persons aged 50 and over. Contributions above these limits are taxed at the top marginal tax rate and Medicare Levy by applying an additional tax of 31.5 per cent on the excess contribution payable by the individual.

Before 1 July 2007, employers were not entitled to a deduction for contributions in excess of an employee's age-based limit.

The superannuation surcharge for higher income earners applied to some of these contributions in 2004-05 and earlier financial years. The maximum surcharge rates were reduced from the original 15 per cent to 14.5 per cent in 2003-04, and to 12.5 per cent in 2004-05. The surcharge was abolished for contributions made on or after 1 July 2005.

In any particular year, the application of the benchmark treatment rather than the concessional tax rates to these contributions would increase tax revenue by the amounts indicated.

Legislative reference:	Before 1 July 2007: Part IX Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 After 1 July 2007: Division 295 Income Tax Assessment Act 1997

The earnings of complying superannuation entities, after certain costs of the entities are deducted, are taxed at a concessional rate. The tax rate on earnings is 15 per cent (for the accumulation phase) or nil where they are derived from assets which are used to meet current pension liabilities (drawdown phase). Complying superannuation entities are entitled to refunds of excess imputation credits attached to dividends payable to the fund.

For financial year 2007-08 and later years, this item also includes the concessional taxation of fund earnings on funded superannuation income streams (for earlier years all superannuation income stream related items are included in the tax expenditure Superannuation – tax on funded superannuation income streams (C14)).

This tax expenditure reflects the extra tax in a particular year that would be collected if superannuation earnings of that year were held constant, but were taxed at the personal tax rates of members rather than fund rates. The effect of taxation on subsequent accumulations, earnings and tax is not taken into account.

In the case of unfunded superannuation, no employer contribution is made until the actual benefit is provided on the member's retirement. The appropriate benchmark treatment for these amounts is therefore taxation at personal rates on receipt by the member.

Unfunded superannuation lump sums are taxed in the same way as funded superannuation lump sums from untaxed funds (see the tax expenditures Superannuation – tax on funded lump sums relating to post-June 1983 service and Superannuation – tax on funded lump sums relating to pre-July 1983 service).

Pension payments from an unfunded source are included in the taxpayer's assessable income and are subject to tax at marginal rates. From 1 July 2007, pension payments from an unfunded source became eligible for a 10 per cent tax offset for persons aged 60 or over.

The taxation of a death benefit paid to a dependant as a reversionary pension depends on the age of the primary and reversionary beneficiary. If either was aged 60 or over at the time of death, then payments to the reversionary beneficiary will be taxed at marginal rates with a 10 per cent tax offset. If both were under age 60 at the time of death, the pension will be taxed at the reversionary beneficiary's marginal tax rate (less any tax free component and any relevant offset) unless, or until, the reversionary beneficiary is aged 60 or over, in which case it will become eligible for the 10 per cent tax offset.

Death benefit payments to non-dependants must be made as a lump sum. Lump sum death benefits paid to a non-dependent from an untaxed source are taxed at 30 per cent.

Currently, certain persons are entitled to a full deduction for all personal contributions they make to a superannuation fund, provided that the deduction is not greater than the amount that reduces the individual's taxable income to nil. For the purposes of this deduction, the persons entitled are those who have less than 10 per cent of their income earned as an employee. This includes many unincorporated and substantially self-employed persons and persons not in paid employment.

These personal contributions are concessional deductible contributions and subject to the 15 per cent tax rate on the first $50,000 contributed per annum, subject to transitional arrangements for persons aged 50 and over at $100,000 per annum. Contributions above $50,000 ($100,000) are taxed at the top marginal tax rate and Medicare levy by applying an additional tax of 31.5 per cent on the excess contribution. This tax is payable by the individual.

Prior to 1 July 2007, eligible self-employed persons received a full tax deduction for the first $5,000 of contributions plus 75 per cent of any remaining contributions up to a maximum deduction equal to their age-based limit.

Under the benchmark, contributions by these persons would not be deductible, on the basis that they are not outgoings. If the level of contributions was maintained, but the contributions were not deductible, revenue would be higher by the amounts indicated.

The superannuation surcharge for higher income earners applied to some of these contributions in 2004-05 and earlier financial years. The surcharge was abolished for contributions made on or after 1 July 2005.

Non-concessional contributions include those made from an individual's after tax income (generally undeducted contributions) and excess concessional contributions (that is, employer and personal deducted contributions which have exceeded the annual concessional contribution thresholds). The benchmark treatment of these contributions is that they are taxed like any other income in the hands of the individual (that is, the contributions are taxed at the individual's marginal tax rate).

Prior to 9 May 2006, the tax treatment of non-concessional (then referred to as undeducted) contributions was consistent with the benchmark. Since 10 May 2006, non-concessional contributions have been subject to a cap, with contributions in excess of the cap taxed at the top marginal tax rate, payable by the individual. The taxation of these excess contributions represents a deviation from the benchmark.

A cap of $1 million applies to non-concessional contributions made between 10 May 2006 and 30 June 2007. From 1 July 2007, an annual cap of $150,000 applies to non-concessional contributions, although people under age 65 will be able to bring forward up to two years worth of non-concessional contributions. Exemptions to the cap include proceeds from the disposal of assets that qualify for some small business CGT concessions, up to a lifetime limit of $1.045 million, and proceeds arising from structured settlements or orders for personal injuries.

For taxed funds, the taxable component of lump sums is generally taxed at 20 per cent where the taxpayer is aged under 55 years.

For lump sums paid before 1 July 2007 to taxpayers aged 55 or over, or paid after 30 June 2007 to taxpayers aged 55 to 59, the element of any lump sum benefit taxed during the accumulation stage is typically taxed at zero per cent up to the low rate threshold and 15 per cent thereafter.

Untaxed funds are those where superannuation benefits are not taxed during the accumulation phase. For taxpayers under age 55 both before and from 1 July 2007, the taxation rate on these elements is typically 30 per cent. For taxpayers aged 55 or over before 1 July 2007, the element of a lump sum untaxed during the accumulation stage was typically taxed at 15 per cent up to the low rate threshold and 30 per cent thereafter. From 1 July 2007, lump sums received by taxpayers aged 55 to 59 are subject to tax rates ranging from 15 per cent to the top rate.

From 1 July 2007, the element of a lump sum from a taxed source relating to post-June 1983 service is tax free for persons aged 60 or over. The post-June 1983 element untaxed in a fund is typically taxed at 15 per cent up to an amount of $1 million for persons aged 60 or over.

Special arrangements apply to lump sums paid to certain temporary residents who have departed Australia. The taxed element of these lump sum payments is taxed at 35 per cent and the untaxed element at 45 per cent (from 1 July 2002 to 1 April 2009 the tax rates were 30 per cent and 40 per cent respectively).

Lump sum payments to death benefit dependents (and non-dependents of service and police personnel killed in the line of duty) and to persons suffering from a terminal medical condition are tax free.

Death benefit payments to non-dependants must be made as a lump sum. Lump sum death benefits paid to a non-dependent from a taxed source are taxed at 15 per cent.

The amounts reported are the tax raised on these lump sums.

Before 1 July 2007, the part of a lump sum benefit relating to service before July 1983 was taxed at a lower rate. Only 5 per cent of the pre-July 1983 amount was included in a taxpayer's assessable income and subject to tax at marginal rates. This concessional treatment reflected the regime for taxing eligible termination payments that existed before July 1983. Applying the post-June 1983 tax rates to these funded benefits would have imposed a tax retrospectively. The amounts reported are the tax raised on these lump sums.

From 1 July 2007, the component of a lump sum benefit relating to pre-July 1983 service is tax free.

The taxable component of superannuation income stream payments received by a taxpayer before 1 July 2007 was included in assessable income and subject to tax at marginal rates. The taxable component of superannuation income stream payments from a taxed source to a taxpayer aged 55 or over generally attracted a tax offset of 15 per cent. The tax raised reduces the total superannuation tax expenditure, as under the benchmark withdrawals from superannuation are tax free.

From 1 July 2007, superannuation income stream payments from a taxed source are tax free for persons aged 60 or over. The taxable component of superannuation income stream payments received by a taxpayer below age 60 are included in assessable income. A tax offset of 15 per cent applies to the taxable component of superannuation income stream payments paid to taxpayers aged 55 to 59, and to disability benefits paid to taxpayers of any age.

The taxable component of pension payments from an untaxed source are eligible for a 10 per cent tax offset for persons aged 60 or over.

From 1 July 2007, this item relates to the tax on funded pensions for persons under the age of 60.

The taxation of a death benefit paid from a taxed source as a reversionary pension depends on the age of the primary and reversionary beneficiary. If either the primary or reversionary beneficiary was aged 60 or over at the time of death, then income stream payments to the reversionary beneficiary will be tax free. If both were under age 60 at the time of death, the taxable component will be taxed at the reversionary beneficiary's marginal tax rate (less a 15 per cent tax offset) unless, or until, the reversionary beneficiary is aged 60 or over, in which case it will be tax free.

Commencement date:	1986				Expiry date:
Legislative reference:	Section 9 Fringe Benefits Tax Assessment Act 1986

Under the fringe benefits tax benchmark, the value of a car fringe benefit is the cost of providing the vehicle (for instance, where the vehicle is provided under a lease, the value of the lease payments) plus the associated vehicle running costs. The statutory formula method for valuing car fringe benefits values the benefit as a proportion of the acquisition cost of the vehicle, which declines as distance travelled by the vehicle each year increases. This approach may result in the undervaluation of the benefit when calculating fringe benefits tax with the result that less tax is paid on car fringe benefits than would be if the cost of the benefit were paid by the employee out of after tax cash remuneration.

Broadly, if an employer has kept and lodged required fringe benefits tax records, and provides aggregate fringe benefits below a threshold ($6,391 in 2007) then an employer need not keep or retain full fringe benefits tax records. Those employers' liability to pay fringe benefits tax is based on their liability in their most recent base year instead of the current year.

A base year is a year after 1 April 1996 in which the employer met the conditions given above.

A car parking fringe benefit arises if within a one kilometre radius of the premises on which the car is parked there is a commercial parking station that charges a fee for all day parking that is more than a specified car parking threshold calculated by reference to movements in the consumer price index. The threshold for 2007 is $6.62. For fees under the threshold no parking fringe benefit arises.

The fringe benefit only applies to cars (any motor-powered road vehicle designed to carry a load of less than one tonne and fewer than nine passengers). Motorcycles are exempt from fringe benefits tax for the purposes of this concession.

The tax expenditure also arises due to the availability of five different methods by which employers can calculate their fringe benefits tax liability for the car parking benefit. The use of these methods may result in the undervaluation of the benefit when calculating fringe benefits tax with the result that less tax is paid on car parking fringe benefits than would be if the cost of the benefit were paid by the employee out of after tax cash remuneration.

Commencement date:		2000			Expiry date:
Legislative reference:		Section 104-47 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997

For capital gains tax purposes, perpetual conservation covenants are treated as a part disposal of land, rather than the creation of a right. This treatment results in a reduced capital gain because a portion of the cost base of the land is taken into account. Previously the capital gain equalled the amount received for the covenant less incidental costs.

Landowners can also benefit from any capital gains tax concession or exemption that may apply to the capital gain. For example, a capital gain from a covenant granted in respect of land owned before 20 September 1985 is exempt. In addition, the capital gains tax discount may now apply if the land has been owned for at least 12 months.

Capital gains or losses on the disposal of an individual's main residence and up to two hectares of adjacent land are exempt from capital gains tax.

- A taxpayer is entitled to treat a dwelling as their main residence from the time they acquire it until the time when they first occupy it provided they occupy it as soon as practicable.
- A taxpayer is entitled to treat a dwelling as their main residence indefinitely if it was the main residence and then ceases to be their main residence provided it is not used to produce assessable income.
- A taxpayer is entitled to acquire a dwelling that is to become their main residence, whilst still owning an existing dwelling and treat both dwellings as their main residence for up to six months or until their ownership of the existing dwelling ends, whichever occurs first.
- A taxpayer is entitled to treat a block of land as their main residence, if the land was acquired for the purposes of building a dwelling, the dwelling is completed within four years of acquiring the land, the taxpayer moves into the dwelling as soon as practicable and the dwelling continues to be their main residence for at least three months.

A taxpayer's dwelling may continue to be treated as their main residence for up to six years (the six year rule) even if the dwelling ceases to be their main residence and is used to produce assessable income. This is provided that no other dwelling is treated as the taxpayer's main residence during this time.

In addition, from 20 August 1996, a taxpayer who receives a dwelling as beneficiary of a deceased estate, or who owns the dwelling as the trustee of a deceased estate, may be able to ignore for capital gains tax purposes, any use of the dwelling to produce assessable income by the deceased prior to their death if:

- the dwelling was the deceased's main residence before their death; and
- it was not being used to produce assessable income at the time of the deceased's death or, if the dwelling was used to produce assessable income, that use was ignored under the six year rule.

Capital gains tax (CGT) concessions are available to defer or exempt the CGT payable in respect of the restructuring of a corporate or trust group, where the group is split into two or more entities or groups (that is, by demerging). There are three elements to demerger relief:

- CGT roll-over relief at the shareholder or trust membership interest level for interests such as shares that are exchanged during the demerger process;
- a CGT exemption for certain capital gains and losses at the entity level; and
- an income tax exemption for certain 'demerger dividends'.

These concessions are available to demergers that occur on or after 1 July 2002.

Capital gains tax roll-over relief is available for capital gains where an asset is compulsorily acquired, lost or destroyed and the taxpayer purchases a replacement asset. In recognition that the disposal was not initiated by the taxpayer, the capital gains liability is deferred from the time of the compulsory acquisition, loss or destruction until the ultimate disposal of the replacement asset.

This measure has been extended to establish the same treatment for a compulsory acquisition whether by a private or public acquirer and to provide greater flexibility for landowners whose land is compulsorily subject to a mining lease.

A capital gains tax roll-over is available where a statutory licence ends and is replaced with a new licence that authorises substantially similar activity to the original licence. From the 2006-07 income year, a partial capital gains tax roll-over is available where a statutory licence ends and the licence holder receives a new licence and non-licence capital proceeds. The part of a capital gain or capital loss on the ending of the original licence referable to the non-licence capital proceeds is subject to tax at that time, whereas the part referable to the extent the new licence replaces the original licence is rolled over.

Capital gains tax roll-over relief is available for capital gains arising from an exchange of interests in companies or fixed trusts. The roll-over relief ensures that an equity holder who exchanges original shares or other equity for new equity in a takeover or merger can defer a capital gains tax liability arising from the exchange until the ultimate disposal of the replacement asset. The roll-over relief ensures that capital gains tax does not impede takeovers and similar arrangements. This tax expenditure is likely to vary considerably depending upon actual takeover and merger activity. Estimates for the projection years are based on the average activity in preceding periods.

Certain non-resident investors are exempt from tax on profits and gains in respect of their eligible venture capital investments.

The concession introduced in 1999 provides an exemption from tax on the disposal of investments in new equity in eligible venture capital investments to non-resident pension funds that are tax exempt in their home jurisdiction (being either Canada, France, Germany, Japan, the United Kingdom, the United States or other approved jurisdictions).

The concession introduced in 2002 provides an exemption from tax on the profits and gains in equity investments made by a venture capital limited partnership to certain non-resident partners in the partnership. The exemption is available to a partner who is a tax exempt resident of Canada, France, Germany, Japan, the United Kingdom, the United States or other approved jurisdictions, a venture capital fund of funds established and maintained in those countries, or a taxable resident of Canada, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands (excluding the Netherlands Antilles), New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Taiwan, the United Kingdom, the United States or other approved jurisdictions, that holds less than 10 per cent of the committed capital of a venture capital limited partnership.

As foreshadowed in the 2006-07 Budget, the venture capital limited partnerships regime has been enhanced by:

- removing a range of restrictions including allowing investment in unit trusts and convertible notes as well as shares;
- relaxing the requirement that 50 per cent of assets and employees must be in Australia for 12 months after making the investment; and
- removing restrictions on the country of residence of investors.

Before 1 July 2006, diesel with a sulphur content higher than 50 parts per million was subject to a higher rate of excise than the benchmark rate. The benchmark rate is the rate that applies to unleaded petrol and ultra low sulphur diesel. An excise differential of one cent per litre was implemented from 1 July 2003 and was increased to two cents per litre from 1 January 2004.

From 1 January 2006, diesel with more than 50 parts per million of sulphur no longer meets fuel standards, and is no longer able to be sold unless a waiver is obtained from the Minister for the Environment and Heritage.

Before 1 July 2006, leaded petrol was subject to a higher rate of excise than the benchmark rate. The benchmark rate is the rate that applies to unleaded petrol and ultra low sulphur diesel. The excise differential, which equated to around two cents per litre was originally introduced in 1994 to address health concerns associated with the use of leaded fuels.

The minimal nature of this tax expenditure from 2002-03 reflected the introduction of lead replacement petrol, which is subject to excise at the benchmark rate, and restricted access to leaded petrol (under the Fuel Quality Standards Act 2000) from 1 January 2002. The excise differential was removed on 1 July 2006.

The benchmark treatment applies to loose tobacco and to cigarettes and cigars with more than 0.8 grams of tobacco. Cigarettes and cigars with less than 0.8 grams of tobacco are subject to excise on a per stick basis. The effect of per stick excise is to tax the tobacco in these cigarettes and cigars more heavily than the benchmark.

Alcoholic beverages (other than beer) with an alcohol content not exceeding 10 per cent are subject to a higher effective rate of excise than applies under the benchmark. Under the benchmark, which is based on the tax treatment of full strength beer sold in containers less than 48 litres, the first 1.15 per cent of alcoholic content of an alcoholic beverage whose alcohol content does not exceed 10 per cent is not excisable. This excise-free threshold is not available to alcoholic beverages other than beer (mainly 'ready to drink' beverages) giving rise to a negative tax expenditure.

From 27 April 2008 the excise on these products increased to the same level as applies to spirits.

Prior to midnight (Canberra time), 13 May 2008, condensate produced in a State or Territory, or inside the outer limits of the territorial sea of Australia, or marketed separately from a crude oil stream, or in the North West Shelf project area is exempt from the crude oil excise. Condensate is a light oil extracted from 'wet' gas and primarily processed for use in motor vehicles (commonly known as petrol).

As announced in the 2008-09 Budget, the tax exemption for condensate was abolished with effect from midnight (Canberra time) 13 May 2008. From this date, condensate production from petroleum fields located in the North West Shelf project area and onshore Australia have been subject to the same excise rates as those applicable to petroleum fields discovered after 18 September 1975.

Generally, financial supplies are input taxed, meaning that an entity is not entitled to input tax credits for their acquisitions relating to financial supplies that entity makes. However, an entity can be entitled to input tax credits for its financial acquisitions if it does not exceed the financial acquisitions threshold. The entitlement to input tax credits for financial acquisitions in these circumstances is regarded as a positive tax expenditure.

An entity does not exceed the financial acquisitions threshold if the input taxed credits it would have been entitled to had the financial acquisitions been for a credible purpose, do not exceed $50,000 or 10 per cent of their total input tax credits for the year.

The supply and acquisition of a financial service is input taxed. This means the supply of a financial service is not subject to GST, but input tax credits can not be claimed on inputs to either the supply or to the acquisition of the supply. When input-taxed supplies are made to consumers, a positive tax expenditure arises as less than 10 per cent of the total value added is remitted to the Australian Taxation Office (ATO). When input-taxed supplies are made to other registered businesses a negative tax expenditure arises as more than 10 per cent of the value added is remitted to the ATO due to embedded taxation.

Financial supplies are generally input taxed. However, the acquisition of certain supplies (known as reduced credit acquisitions) entitles financial service suppliers to input tax credits at a reduced rate of 75 per cent of the full GST rate. The entitlement to the 75 per cent credit in these instances is a tax expenditure.

The Commissioner of Taxation can create simplified accounting methods (SAMs) that some small businesses can choose to apply with a view to reducing their GST compliance costs. SAMs allow taxpayers to apply simple ratios to calculate their GST liabilities (or components of them) rather than accounting for each supply to determine if it is taxable or non-taxable. Being ratios, unbiased SAMs will benefit some taxpayers by reducing their GST liabilities while increasing the GST liabilities of others, relative to the amounts calculated using a full GST calculation.

While SAMs are designed to reduce compliance costs rather than provide a tax concession, entities that expect to receive a tax benefit from applying SAMs are more likely to adopt this methodology than those that do not. This would be expected to result in a net tax concession.

Charities and other gift deductible bodies are entitled to a higher registration threshold of $150,000. They are entitled to GST free treatment on non commercial activities, certain retirement village services, bingo, and sale of second hand goods. Charities can elect to have fund raising treated as input taxed. This option is also available to gift deductible entities and government schools. Simplified accounting methods may be available and a range of other concessions apply. Non-profit bodies can opt to have their independent branches treated as independent bodies for GST purposes as an alternative to the normal branch procedures.

Specific supplies of farm land are GST free. This includes: farm land supplied for farming on which a farming business has been carried on for at least five years and upon which a farming business is intended to continue to be carried on, on the land; and subdivided farm land that is potential residential land that is supplied to associates.

Under the GST benchmark, farm land supplied to an unregistered purchaser for farming; or farm land that is potential residential land supplied to an unregistered associate for nil or inadequate consideration; gives rise to a tax expenditure under this item.

No net GST would be collected under the benchmark from farm land supplied for farming to a registered business purchaser.

The first supply of a precious metal by or on behalf of a refiner after the refining process to a precious metal dealer is GST free. Subsequent supplies of precious metals are input taxed. The importation of precious metals is a non taxable importation and as such GST will not be charged on the importation. The tax expenditure here is the loss of tax on the GST free and input taxed supplies and imports (where this would not be offset by ITCs) reduced by any input tax credits denied for acquisitions related to the input taxed activities.
