

From: [REDACTED]
To: DGR Inbox
Subject: Environmental charities
Date: Wednesday, 2 August 2017 6:37:39 PM

I write to oppose any restriction on the activities of environmental charities, which have various purposes in addition to remediation. By its nature, remediation can only occur after the damage is done: many charities have as part of their activities prevention of the damage before it is done.

With many groups, advocacy is an important part of the work undertaken: it would be counter-productive to limit this activity, and it is no business of government to restrict it, as the discussion paper appears to imply.

Robin Johnson