I, like many others, have been affected by non-payment from an employer who has been blatant in his act of defiance to pay, (despite rulings and directions from the ATO) amounts of over two million dollars of employees superannuation guarantee. Many directors/employers are living the high life on unpaid employees Superannuation Guarantee and I would submit that any regulation be drafted to reflect that:

- 1. Non-payment of Superannuation Guarantee should be back dated for a period of ten years.*
- 2. Directors of companies who have gone into liquidation over the past ten years to avoid such payments, still to be held accountable.*
- 3. Inquiries to be held into such companies/directors/employers which have received numerous complaints through the Australian Taxation Office for unpaid Superannuation Guarantee over the past ten years.*
