

Traveling expense question.

what if my son who is the license trades person. I will pay him for the flight and all the travel costs to maintain and service the property on my behalf?

Can I still reimburse this traveling expense which is incurred by the third party?

Travel deductions

From 1 July 2017, all travel expenditure relating to residential investment properties, including inspecting and maintaining residential investment properties will no longer be deductible.

This change will not prevent investors from engaging third parties such as real estate agents to provide property management services for investment properties. These expenses will remain deductible.

<https://treasury.gov.au/ConsultationsandReviews/Consultations/2017/Housing-Tax-Integrity>

--

Regards

Nuttakit Lueng (Sinze)