

Mothers at home

It is said that the current system is unfair because families with similar incomes can pay vastly different amounts of net tax.

- A single income family on $80,000 pays around $6,000 more net tax every year than a double income family on the same income.
- A double income family could earn up to $172,000 a year before they pay the same average tax rate as a single income family on just $86,000 a year.

It would appear that the current Lib/NP government is more concerned with getting as many mothers into the workforce as possible, probably to increase revenue for the government, rather than to encourage families and help mothers to raise their children properly by staying at home. The Lib/NP government has failed to recognise the obvious, that children being raised by their mothers at home will lead to a much better society for all.

Sincerely, Alan Bolin
