Submission on Implementation of the OECD Hybrid Mismatch Rules 4 April 2018

The Tax Justice Network Australia (TJN-Aus) welcomes this opportunity to make submission on the implementing the OECD Hybrid Mismatch Rules. TJN-Aus welcomes Australian Government action to address the problem of hybrid mismatches and their misuse by some corporations to avoid paying taxes in the places where business is really being conducted. TJN-Aus supports the Treasury Laws Amendment (OECD Hybrid Mismatch Rules) Bill 2018 being introduced to the Parliament as a matter of priority.

TJN-Aus notes that the OECD has estimated the global revenue loss to governments from base erosion and profit shifting (BEPS) to be conservatively between US$100 billion and US$240 billion a year, or between 4% and 10% of global corporate income tax revenues. Thus it is important that the Australian Government makes an effective contribution to multilateral efforts to address BEPS and ensure governments have revenue to provide for services to their communities such as health clinics, schools, mental health services, aged care and law enforcement.

There is a risk that there will be attempts to defeat the hybrid mismatch rules by the design of much more elaborate hybrid mismatches in order to circumvent the rules. The hybrid mismatch rules will require constant monitoring to ensure proper application. Resolving the arbitrage questions raised by hybrid payments, entities, and transfers is easier said than done. The complexity comes from attempts to narrow the range of transactions covered.

TJN-Aus supports that the operation of the hybrid financial mismatch rule extends to apply if an amount of income or profits was subject to foreign income tax in circumstances where the rate of tax was lower than the ordinary rate of tax that applies to interest income in that jurisdictions. This is necessary to combat governments of secrecy jurisdictions cutting special deals with multinational enterprises (MNEs) to cheat other governments out of tax revenue they should be entitled to on the basis of where the MNEs are actually doing business. The Australian Government is right to be wary that there will be governments of secrecy jurisdictions that may seek to enter into arrangements with MNEs to deliberately facilitate hybrid mismatches.

TJN-Aus supports the inclusion of the integrity rule to address attempts by MNEs to circumvent the hybrid mismatch laws by interposing a conduit entity that pays effectively no tax to invest into Australia, as an alternative to investing directly into Australia via traditional hybrid instruments or entities. However, TJN-Aus is concerned that the integrity rule will not apply if it is reasonable to conclude the scheme was not designed to produce an Australian income tax deduction in relation to the payment while avoiding the imposition of a foreign income tax payment of greater than 10%. This seems to open up an avenue of argument that efforts to circumvent the integrity measure were not designed to do so. It would be better if this exemption from the integrity rule was removed.

TJN-Aus supports the amendments to limit the scope of the exemption for foreign branch income and to prevent a deduction from arising for payments made by an Australian branch of a foreign bank to its head office in some circumstances.

TJN-Aus also supports the amendments to:

- deny imputation benefits on franked distributions made by an Australian corporate tax entity if all or part of the distribution gives rise to a foreign income tax deduction; and
- prevent a foreign equity distribution from a foreign company that is received, directly or indirectly, by an Australian corporate tax entity that holds a participation interest of at least 10 per cent in the foreign company from being non-assessable non-exempt income if all or part of the distribution gives rise to a foreign income tax deduction.
