

I think it's only fair that smaller mechanics have access to the information required to keep prices competitive for the consumer and to keep in line with other countries.

Sent from my iPhone