

Dear Sirs/madams,

You have set up a Super regime for all Australians under a particular set of rules, and they were compulsory.

It worked, and people like me invested under those rules.

Ever since each progressive elected Government have eyed off the pool of money that has produced with undisguised avarice.

Leave it alone!

We have followed your edict and saved and now you want to change the rules.

The fact that I have saved a fair bit means you want to claw it back.

No! We will rise up and punish you for changing it.

Or maybe give us a fat pension instead eh?

Best regards John Woodruff
