

as a self funded retiree I rely on the franked dividends provided by my investments under the superannuation banner. Part of being encouraged by the Government to contribute to superannuation was that investment income would be tax free and by doing this the government was aiming to help retirees not to require a government pension and it worked.

Again the government is aiming to change the rules and make it retrospective. How bloody unfair is this. Attacking the people who the government think is an easy target.

Why don't you apply a fair tax to all people by increasing the GST instead of targeting the minority ageing people who have saved for old age and always abided by the rules .

Please rethink this dishonest theft of money from the decent past hard working people of Australia.

Bill Evans.
