

I am disgusted to think that there is even a suggestion that the government would consider retrospective changes back to 2016 on certain franking credit payments to shareholders.

How does the government think people will have the money to cover the refunds which would have been spent over those years.

Peter Kendall,
Kathryn Kendall

Sent from my iPad