

Dear Sir/madam,

I do not believe that there should be any changes to the rules for franked dividends or capital raisings. For the average person who decides to invest in shares, they will find themselves worse off, and some of those may change their ideas of who would be better to run the country.

Regards,

Neil Smith