

Hi

Its disappointing to note that the government of the day has decided to once again change the goal post.

It was clearly a reason whilst Labour lost the 2019 election and now, they are targeting the Super accounts for a TAX grab

What makes things worse is that they want to get hold of all the franked dividends back dated from 2016;UNAUSTRIAN to the core

If sensible changes need to be made, then it should be put up in each party' s election agenda and if they fail then bear the consequences just like all common citizens

I totally object to have this back dated to 2016 and against the franked dividends been taxed prospectively & retrospectively
I hope my objection will count

If the Labour govt wants to change the tax rules around franked dividends, then they should set a future date in 2025 so everyone has time to adjust their individual retirement plans
