

This new government promised they would not touch franking credits. Now they are a few weeks after the election. Wow