

Firstly, as a general comment, changes to superannuation rules does erode peoples confidence in the system.

Secondly, grandfathering must apply to any changes introduced because people have made decisions about their superannuation under existing rules.